Ike Hails New Bill
Outlawing U.S.
Communists

DENVER (AP) — President Eisenhower Tuesday signed legislation outlawing the Communist party and hailed it as a reflection of American determination to smash conspiracies aimed at "violent overthrow of our entire form of government."

The President's history-making action also wrote into a law a provision for a crackdown on Red-infiltrated labor unions, and he announced that in the next few days he will sign three other measures which aim blows at Communists and other subversives.

The administration did not ask Congress to enact the Communist outlawry bill, which was pushed through in the closing days of the session, and it had made no secret of misgivings that the legislation might drive Reds further underground.

But Eisenhower, in signing the measure Monday at his vacation headquarters, made no mention of any misgivings.

People Determined

"The American people," he declared in a formal statement, "are determined to protect themselves and their institutions against any organization in their midst which, purporting to be a political party within the normally accepted meaning, is actually a conspiracy dedicated to the violent overthrow of our entire form of government."

"The American people likewise are determined to accomplish this in strict conformity with the requirements of justice, fair play and the constitution of the United States."

"They realize that employment of any other means would react unfavorably against the innocent as well as the guilty, and, in the long run, would distort and damage the judicial proceedings of our country. The whole series of bills which the administration has sponsored in this field have been designed in this spirit and with just these purposes."

Shortly afterward, a Communist party spokesman in New York asserted the party would "continue to function as a legal political party."

"Unconstitutional."

The spokesman declared the new law was "profoundly unconstitutional" and that the party would "join with other groups to seek the bill's invalidation."

He added that the party would have more to say about the matter after it has a chance to study the legislation, together with President Eisenhower's statement.

In his statement on the anti-Red legislation he approved, Eisenhower announced that during the next few days he will sign bills providing for:

1. Stripping citizenship from those advocating overthrow of the government by force and violence. He said that measure reinforces "the historic concept that citizenship is the right only of those who bear true faith and allegiance to the United States and its institutions."

2. The death penalty for persons found guilty of peacetime espionage, and broadening the definition of sabotage to include acts involving use of radioactive, biological and chemical agents.

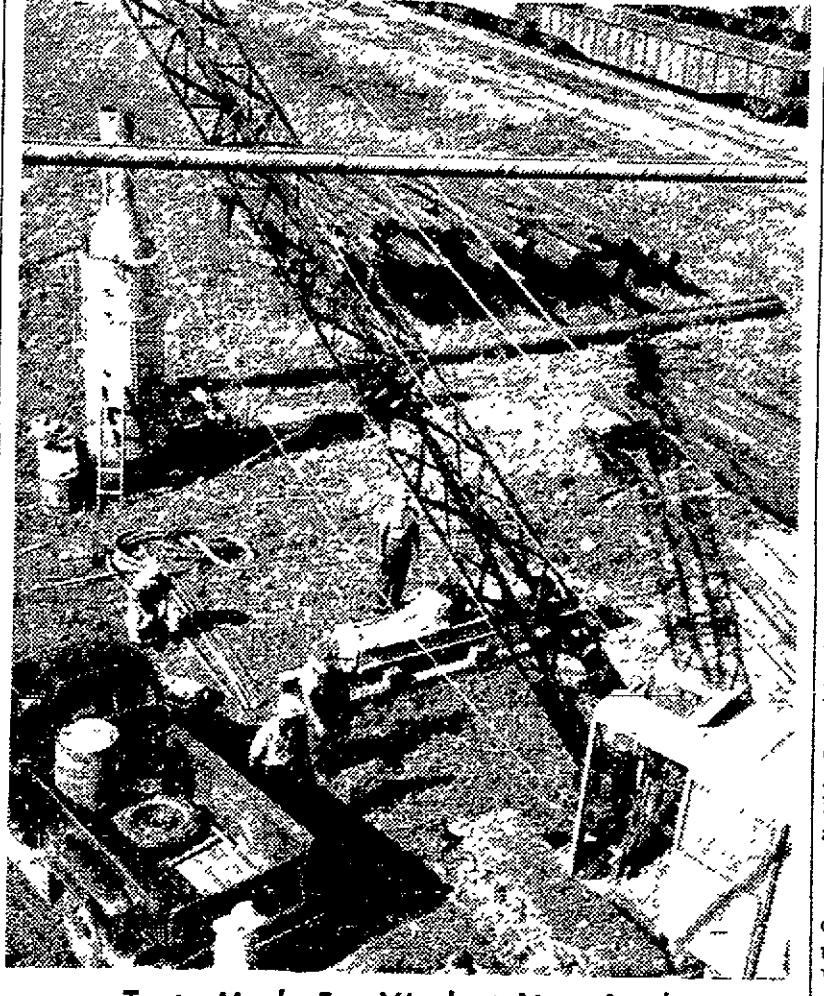

Pension Pay

3. Banning government payment of pensions and annuities to former officers and federal employees who have been convicted of certain criminal offenses. That new law bars payment of a pension to Alger Hiss, former State Department of criminal conviction of perjury in denying he passed secret data to Soviet agents.

The President said those anti-Red bills he plans to sign, plus others he already has approved, provide the Justice Department and the FBI with "much more effective weapons to help destroy the Communist menace."

And he declared that enforcement of other laws previously on the books to deal with subversives has been stepped up since his administration took office.

As a "result," he added, "41 top Communist leaders have been convicted, 35 more are indicted and scheduled for trial, and 105 subversive aliens have been deported."

Embattled North Platte Weighing Scale Closed

By ARCH DONOVAN
Star Staff Writer

The state truck weighing scale at North Platte has been temporarily closed down, J. H. MacDonald, chief of the truck weighing division of the State Highway Department, announced Tuesday.

Because of criticism of the truck weighing activities at North Platte, MacDonald requested the state Division of Weights and Measures to test the scale on Monday. They reported it slightly inaccurate at certain weights but still within the "tolerance" allowed by the state law.

However, MacDonald said that he wanted the scales to be absolutely accurate at all weights and instructed the operating crew to close down temporarily. He immediately made arrangements with the factory to adjust the automatic scale.

The factory mechanic is expected to complete work early Wednesday and arrangements have been made for a double check of the accuracy by the manufacturers and the weights and measures divisions.

"Due to the hub-bub that has been raised in North Platte, I do not want there to be any question of testimony on weights in case we do have to prosecute any truck operators," MacDonald said.

Colorado truck operators have resisted convictions for violating the state weight law at the North Platte station, which is located two miles east of town.

Because many of the trucks are loaded above the state legal limit but within the "tolerance" granted by the last Legislature, it is reported that they fear to buy motor fuel in North Platte on eastbound trips for fear of being overweight.

On passage of the "tolerance" law which it was argued would protect truck owners from being overweight due to an accumulation of ice, snow or mud, Sen. Tom Coffey, truck line operator, told the members it was "the nicest birthday present I ever received."

He had argued in behalf of the bill that increased penalties would cause truck operators to keep within the weight limit.

The opposition pointed out that the "tolerance" allowed was to all practical purposes an increase in the weight limits and that trucks would continue to load to the maximum allowed. Advocates of better roads point out that the North Platte experience is proving this contention true.

Woman Tells Of Red Soldiers' Atrocities

STORY OF ATTACKS RECITED

... To House Probers

NEW YORK (AP)—A mystery woman—her nervous hands visible behind a protective screen—described Tuesday how Russian wartime troops raped her in a mass attack. She collapsed as she finished her dramatic recital.

The woman detailed her own personal horror story to a House Committee on Communist Aggression, which is compiling reports on Red atrocities.

Austrian-born, she said she was in Hungary in 1944 when the Red army rolled in. Russian soldiers raped her nine or 10 times in quick succession, she added, and left her terrified and diseased.

Rep. Alvin M. Bentley (R-Mich.), committee chairman, asked her at one point if rape by Red soldiers wasn't the exception rather than the rule.

It Was The Rule

"It certainly was not," she replied. "It was the rule. If you met a young girl or even an older woman and she said she had not been raped, you looked at her as if something must be wrong with her."

"We talked about it freely. It was nothing to be ashamed of. Every girl was raped at least once."

The mystery woman was billed only as "Madame X" as she took the witness stand. The committee withheld her identity to spare her embarrassment.

In her 30's, she was a short, slender blonde. She testified in excellent English from behind a large screen that concealed the upper part of her body. However, her hands were visible underneath, clenching and unclenching until the knuckles grew white with strain.

Husband Close By

She left the witness stand after about 35 minutes and sagged into the arms of her husband, who had been standing in an anteroom directly behind her.

She testified she and her husband went to live on a farm near Budapest in 1944. When the Red

Red Horror Attacks Described

An unidentified Hungarian woman, called "Madame X," testifying from behind a screen, tells investigators of a House subcommittee that she was assaulted by seven Russian soldiers outside a farmhouse in Hungary in 1944. She said her husband was held inside the house at gunpoint. She said the Russians infected her with a disease. She was one of the witnesses Tuesday in the probe of horrors committed by Russian soldiers in World War II. (UPI Telephoto.)

"I was in a daze," the woman testified, "when another soldier took me out and did the same thing. This went on seven times."

The woman said the soldiers left her with a venereal disease, which she transmitted to her husband. Later, both were cured.

Another witness, Zoltan Pfeiffer, leader of the Hungarian Independence party until it was dissolved by the Reds in 1947, told her that members of the household would be killed.

One of the soldiers took her to another room, the witness continued, raped her, and told her that members of the household would be killed.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Actress Marilyn Maxwell came off second best in a swimming pool tiff with a "tame" tiger Tuesday, and promptly freed the animal.

According to a spokesman for a hotel, where the singer and the tiger shared billing in a casino act, the two were splashing around in the shallow end of the pool while photographers took pictures when the tiger got panicky.

Miss Maxwell got in the animal's way as it tried to scramble from the water, the spokesman said, and suffered several scratches on her leg.

After being given first aid, she announced that the tiger will be banished from the act back to its home in Thousand Oaks, Calif.

The retired worker now getting the minimum $25 a month will get $30, and the man getting the maximum $35 a month will find his check increased to $38.50. The average increase is $6 a month.

Those retiring in future years will get even more. The maximum will go up to $108.50, but to qualify for that rate, an employee must continue working for at least six quarters after next Jan. 1 at a salary of at least $4,200 a year.

For workers making that much or more, the new bill will add $12 to the annual social security tax effective Jan. 1. The 2 per cent tax on workers and employers, now collected only on the first $3,600 of salary, will be extended to the first $4,200.

The county officials proposed such a change in the law at the last session pointing out that the vehicles are used on highways and are not comparable to fixed personal property. Both the school people and representatives of municipalities opposed the change because it would lower their valuation for tax purposes.

Take a look at what you pay and what you get. You'll see that Chevrolet has more for you and asks less from you. It's priced below all other lines of cars. Chevrolet builds the most cars—and can build them better to sell for less!

A 3-line "Ad-Vise" and "Buy" ad allows you to receive and costs less in the long run. Place your ad for 7 days, then when you get results, cancel it and pay only the cost of the first 7 days plus 7 days only $2. Phone 2-3131 or 2-1234 for a trained, courteous "Ad-Viser."

Woman Tells Of Red Soldiers' Atrocities

STORY OF ATTACKS RECITED

... To House Probers

NEW YORK (P)—A mystery woman—her nervous hands visible behind a protective screen—described Tuesday how Russian wartime troops raped her in a mass attack. She collapsed as she finished her dramatic recital.

The woman detailed her own personal horror story to a House Committee on Communist Aggression, which is compiling reports on Red atrocities.

Austrian-born, she said she was in Hungary in 1944 when the Red army rolled in. Russian soldiers raped her nine or 10 times in quick succession, she added, and left her raped and diseased.

Rep. Alvin M. Bentley (R-Mich.), committee chairman, asked her at one point if rape by Red soldiers wasn't the exception rather than the rule.

It Was The Rule

"It certainly was not," she replied. "It was the rule. If you met a young girl or even an older woman and she said she had not been raped, you looked at her as if something must be wrong with her."

"We talked about it freely. It was nothing to be ashamed of. Every girl was raped at least once."

The mystery woman was billed only as "Madame X" as she took the witness stand. The committee withheld her identity to spare her embarrassment.

In her 30's, she was a short, slender blonde. She testified in excellent English from behind a large screen that concealed the upper part of her body. However, her hands were visible underneath, clenching and unclenching until the knuckles grew white with strain.

Husband Close By

She left the witness stand after about 35 minutes and sagged into the arms of her husband, who had been standing in an anteroom directly behind her.

She testified she and her husband went to live on a farm near Budapest in 1944. When the Red

Red Horror Attacks Described

An unidentified Hungarian woman, called "Madame X," testifying from behind a screen, tells investigators of a House subcommittee, that she was assaulted by seven Russian soldiers outside a farmhouse in Hungary in 1944. She said her husband was held inside the house at gunpoint. She said the Russians infected her with a disease. She was one of the witnesses Tuesday in the probe of the rapes committed by Russian soldiers in World War II. (UP Telephoto.)

troops arrived, she continued, seven Russian soldiers showed up at the farm, where they demanded and got food and drink.

Then, said the woman, they drew guns and herded her husband, herself, her parents, two maids, and a refugee Jewish woman into the kitchen.

One of the soldiers took her to another room, the witness continued, raped her, and told her that members of the household would be killed.

Another witness, Zoltan Pfeiffer, leader of the Hungarian Independence party until it was dissolved by the Reds in 1947, told of the mass execution of 44 persons in the village of Szonyro in 1947.

He attended St. John's College, Winfield, Kan., from 1929 to 1935 and was graduated from Concordia Seminary in St. Louis, Mo., in 1940.

Rev. Bredehoff Accepts Christ Lutheran Call

The Rev. John Bredehoff, pastor of Christ Lutheran Church at Falls City, has accepted a call to the pastorate of Christ Lutheran Church in Lincoln.

He succeeds the Rev. A. G. Ahlman who accepted a call to Gospel Evangelical Lutheran Church in Milwaukee as associate pastor in June.

The Rev. Mr. Bredehoff has been with the Falls City church six years. During that time the congregation built a new teacher's house in connection with the church school. A new $145,000 church was dedicated two years ago. The number of communicants has grown from 204 to 270.

The Rev. Mr. Bredehoff, a native of Independence, Kan., previously served the church in Marysville, Kan.

WASHINGTON (P)—Social security officials prepared Tuesday to start paying an added $40 million dollars a year to the program's beneficiaries, beginning early in October.

President Eisenhower is expected to sign into law a bill expanding the program in ample time for adding the increased amounts to September checks, which will be delivered about Oct. 4.

Officials said about 6½ million beneficiaries—some five million retired workers and widows and other survivors of deceased workers—will automatically receive the higher payments. They will be told of the coming increase in folders, to be mailed with the checks they will get early next month.

Average Hike $6

The retired worker now getting the minimum $25 a month will get $30, and the man getting the maximum $85 a month will find his check increased to $95.50. The average increase is $6 a month.

Those retiring in future years will get even more. The maximum will go up to $108.50, but to qualify for that rate, an employee must continue working for at least six quarter-years after next Jan. 1 at a salary of at least $4,200 a year.

Dulles Says U.S. Might Have To Defend Islands Off Formosa

...Bases Important To 7th Fleet

WASHINGTON (INS)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles made it clear Tuesday the U. S. intends to work for the military and political unity of Western Europe with or without France. Dulles also told his news conference that the U. S. might have to defend the "stepping stone" islands between Formosa and the Chinese mainland as well as Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist stronghold in the event of a Communist attack. He noted however that this is a decision for American military men.

The secretary noted that the islands held by Nationalist forces are the site of radar warning equipment which makes them important to the U. S. Seventh Fleet stationed in the area.

Dulles also emphasized his hopes that the forthcoming Manila conference on a Southeast Asian Alliance will result in the formation of new barriers against Communist expansion in the Pacific.

Four Days

He said he hopes the conference, which begins Sept. 6, can be concluded in four days to allow him time to visit Formosa and Japan before returning to the U. S. for the opening of the United Nations General Assembly Sept. 21.

The secretary read a prepared statement in which he said the European Community Defense plan which France has not yet accepted "embodies principles which are vital to the perpetuation of peace and freedom in Western Europe."

Then he indicated the U.S. plans to push for collective security in Europe no matter what France decides to do. This course was indicated when he said he still hopes that when the final test comes, France will "choose to cement the EDC partnership . . . rather than stand apart."

Among the main principles of EDC, principles to which Dulles apparently referred as vital to peace and freedom in Western Europe, are:

Economic Unity
1. Integration of the troops of France, West Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg

NEW YORK (INS)—The Columbia Broadcasting System announced Tuesday that U. S. Court of Appeals Judge Harold H. Medina will present over CBS "The Case Against Radio and Television coverage" of next week's Senate committee hearings on the censure charges against Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

Judge Medina will answer CBS President Frank Stanton, who will speak on the network Thursday in favor of full radio-TV coverage of the hearings. The Senate committee has banned radio-TV but will permit newsmen to sit in on the hearings.

into a single European army with a single uniform and an international command.

2. Measures for the political, social and economic unity of the six nations.

Dulles said he still has hope that France will ratify the EDC but pointed out that hope does not mean expectation.

The French National Assembly is scheduled to begin debate Saturday on ratification of the treaty which was signed 27 months ago.

The secretary's implied warning to France against standing "apart" from the rest of Europe was all the more pointed because it came only a few hours after President Eisenhower indicated the U. S. is ready to go ahead with an alternative to EDC if necessary.

Main Hope

Officially the State Department refused to discuss any possible alternatives to EDC. One official said the U. S. obviously is still putting its main hope in French ratification and therefore would not talk about alternatives.

In summarizing the EDC situation, Dulles declared: "I deeply regret that at the Brussels meeting, France did not decide to agree with the other five continental countries which signed the EDC treaty."

"That treaty embodies principles which are vital to the perpetuation of peace and freedom in Western Europe."

Mail Early, Often Post Office Drive

The Lincoln Post Office is co-operating with the Post Office Department's nation-wide campaign to encourage the public to "Mail Early and Often."

What was formerly a Christmas slogan has come to be year-round wisdom, according to Postmaster O. E. Jerner.

"Lincoln has noon and afternoon dispatches of mail going in all directions, which can mean getting mail delivered 24 hours ahead of matter which is dispatched later in the day," Jerner said.

Mailers who take every opportunity to mail all classes of mail early and often, thus help speed their mail, the department said.

Dulles Says U.S. Might Have To Defend Islands Off Formosa

...Bases Important To 7th Fleet

WASHINGTON (INS) —Secretary of State John Foster Dulles made it clear Tuesday the U. S. intends to work for the military and political unity of Western Europe with or without France. Dulles also told his news conference that the U. S. might have to defend the "stepping stone" islands between Formosa and the Chinese mainland as well as Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist stronghold in the event of a Communist attack. He noted however that this is a decision for American military men.

The secretary noted that the islands held by Nationalist forces are the site of radar warning equipment which makes them important to the U. S. Seventh Fleet stationed in the area. Dulles also emphasized his hopes that the forthcoming Manila conference on a Southeast Asian Alliance will result in the formation of new barriers against Communist expansion in the Pacific.

Four Days

He said he hopes the conference, which begins Sept. 6, can be concluded in four days to allow him time to visit Formosa and Japan before returning to the U. S. for the opening of the United Nations General Assembly Sept. 21.

The secretary read a prepared statement in which he said the European Community Defense plan which France has not yet accepted "embodies principles which are vital to the perpetuation of peace and freedom in Western Europe."

Then he indicated the U.S. plans to push for collective security in Europe no matter what France decides to do. This course was indicated when he said he still hopes that when the final test comes, France will "choose to cement the EDC partnership . . . rather than stand apart."

Among the main principles of EDC, principles to which Dulles apparently referred as vital to peace and freedom in Western Europe, are:

Economic Unity

1. Integration of the troops of France, West Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg

Wilkinson 'Satisfactory' — City Councilman Rees Wilkinson is reported by his physician to be in "satisfactory" condition at Lincoln General Hospital where he is under observation.

Dulles said he still has hope that France will ratify the EDC but pointed out that hope does not mean expectation.

The French National Assembly is scheduled to begin debate Saturday on ratification of the treaty which was signed 27 months ago.

The secretary's implied warning to France against standing "apart" from the rest of Europe was all the more pointed because it came only a few hours after President Eisenhower indicated the U. S. is ready to go ahead with an alternative to EDC if necessary.

Main Hope

Officially the State Department refused to discuss any possible alternative to EDC. One official said the U. S. obviously is still putting its main hope in French ratification and therefore would not talk about alternatives.

In summarizing the EDC situation, Dulles declared: "I deeply regret that at the Brussels meeting, France did not agree to agree with the other five continental countries which signed the EDC treaty."

That treaty embodies principles which are vital to the perpetuation of peace and freedom in Western Europe."

46 Protest Vets Bus Line Change

A protest to the "curtailment" of service on the Veterans Hospital bus line has been sent to the City Council by 46 petitioners on the line.

Living in an area generally around 36th and Randolph, the petitioners ask the Council to do everything in its power to secure "immediate installation" of service as it existed prior to Aug. 15, 1954. At that time, the State Railway Commission granted a change, on a trial basis, of the Hospital line to combine it with the No. 10th line.

The change cut down some on mileage and resulted in more spacing between buses at certain times.

Roads And Bridges

Southeastern Nebraska was having its troubles. Its graveled roads, particularly in the case of one or two counties, were disintegrating as a result of days of heavy downpours. And the same overabundance of moisture had played hob with bridges.

It appeared that most of these roads needing attention did not fall within the classification of star mail routes, for which the Schroeder law adopted by the Legislature some years ago made provision. But the Schroeder law, earmarking a substantial amount of gasoline tax revenue for the improvement of highway facilities in the rural areas, has come in more and more for criticism because certain of its provisions are so rigid that road money that could be used advantageously elsewhere cannot be spent, except as specifically earmarked.

These counties face a real problem in the replacement of bridges and culverts which have been swept away by flood waters, and in restoring highways that are in poor condition to an acceptable state of maintenance. The need for revenue is urgent but we doubt that the people of Nebraska as a whole will approve any additional gasoline tax. In that case, local communities would have only one choice. Either they would be compelled to raise the additional funds to do the job themselves, or hope that a restudy of conditions results in greater elasticity in the use of highway funds.

Lengthening Shadows

In Brazil Tuesday President Vargas, a warm, devoted friend of Uncle Sam, faced with mounting pressures inside Brazil itself and on the international level, pulled a pistol from his pocket and put bullet through his heart. Thus ended a long and periodically stormy rule in the largest of the South American republics, a rule invariably friendly to the United States.

It was not immediately clear what had happened. Vargas ruled Brazil with an iron hand, setting aside constitutional processes when such action seemed necessary to him, but there was little doubt of his deep, genuine sympathies for Brazil's masses and his continued long fight to improve their status. There were some Communist disorders immediately following his suicide, disorders which were put down quickly.

But despite the reassuring reports that come from Washington, it was apparent that things are not going too well for us in other quarters of the world. We suffered a real blow in Indo-China, the loss of face in much of Asia, and possibly before all the dreary business is over, the loss of much or all of Asia. No carefully prepared words can wipe out the fact that in Indo-China, the United States took the worst reverse it has encountered since Russian and Chinese Communist aggression joined hands.

Now is that all.

The European Defense Community treaty was on the rocks. A portion of the American press and some of the news analysts had given that battle up for lost. We console ourselves by making light of its importance. Why strive to give it life, it is said in some quarters, when France, which should be more interested than any other nation in the European Defense Community

Of Men And Things

By J. E. LAWRENCE

Congratulations to those western Nebraska districts which were reported in the news columns as having turned thumbs down on the irrigation water loan proposal by the Casper-Alcova Irrigation District of Wyoming. It appears to have water to spare for dry or inadequately supplied ditches in western Nebraska. But through the intervention of local officials representing the Bureau of Reclamation, it also appears that it wants its pound of flesh at the expense of thirsty neighbors.

Specifically the spokesmen for Nebraska users said that a "junior right" clause placed in the loan agreement was the root of the trouble. Under that clause Nebraska irrigation districts would be forced to alter their water rights and to make them junior to those of the Wyoming district for the amount of water borrowed. In certain instances that modification could be very serious. It may mean that sugar beet and potato growers in that upper Platte Valley will reduce the yields from these crops and result in total loss in isolated instances unless there are frequent rains. That appears to be an exorbitant price to pay for maintaining senior water rights, but actually in the uncertainties of recent Missouri Basin development, and the growing interest in Colorado and Wyoming in expanding their irrigation domains, the position of Nebraska's districts is justified. We outdate Colorado and Wyoming when it comes to irrigation. We have prior rights to water—a prior right established by long usage. To sacrifice it would be foolhardy even in a temporary sense, if the temporary arrangement later should establish precedent.

There is one shining example of the direction taken by the Eisenhower administration. It talks long and loudly about the benefits of local participation. That talk lights a responsive spark in the hearts of the governors of these basin states, naturally, since local negotiation by contrast with any centralized program of authority leaves things, so they reason, pretty much in their hands. The compact approach to water use in the Missouri and its tributaries sounds good, has a most appealing ring, in fact, but because Nebraska was first in the field in establishing its irrigation rights, it has much to lose and little to gain.

Nebraska's priorities in water usage for irrigation are of vital consequence to this state. Two or three side crops—sugar beets and potatoes, to say nothing of alfalfa and corn—in the central and upper Platte Valleys are dependent upon irrigation year in and year out. Fortunately Congress in the eleven-hour dash failed to pass the enabling legislation required for drafting compacts between the basin states. That means the new Congress will have to act and the likelihood of its acting in due time to procure approval by the legislatures of the individual basin states is slim. But here in this field is the issue of future irrigation development in Nebraska, not only its bearing upon a prosperous agriculture but actually over the next 50 years vitally important to industrial expansion where industry itself calls for huge amounts of water. All this is ahead—not behind—a basic factor in determining the outline of things to be in Nebraska in 1975 or a quarter of a century later. Thus far only those individually interested have devoted the thought so richly deserved to the proposed compact program for the Missouri Basin.

A governor and a legislature are clothed with the authority to take Nebraska into a compact or to reject it. Once in, Nebraska is there to stay for all time. And if it develops that our neighbors to the west and to the north have done a better job of bartering for water than Nebraska, then it will be our nose for it.

DREW PEARSON

No Delinquency Cure But Control Possible

Editor's note: While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation his column is being supplied by guest writers. Today Mrs. Babe Ruth discusses juvenile delinquency.

ford to lose the good citizenship of these boys.

THE BABE HAD A TOUGH START

I wonder how many kids in America today know anything more about Babe Ruth than that he symbolized the home run?

The babe meant more than that to an older generation in his glory days—a big, good-natured orphan who learned to play ball at St. Mary's Industrial School in Baltimore.

What he stood for then, in what we have come to know as the golden age, was a blessed land of opportunity. Baseball made the Babe, and the Babe in turn made baseball.

Like so many kids out of broken homes, the Babe might have got into trouble, real trouble, but for the guidance and understanding of the brothers of St. Mary's. He was much to Brother Mattias, and to the Brothers Paul, Albert and Gilbert.

He also knows there's no special cure-all for juvenile delinquency. He idolized the Babe and knew his background. Baseball helped my husband as it is helping thousands of kids in organized baseball programs today—kids who are restless and burning up with unused energy.

We visited Sen. Hennings of the same committee. "The Babe came of a broken home," he said, "but it didn't break him. How the Babe would hit 'em in Sportsmen's Park St. Louis! That must have been his favorite ball park." The senator gave a most inspiring talk to the group of youngsters from Joplin, Mo. I am sure they will remember the sage remarks as long as they live. Sen. Hennings was a track star at Cornell—Sen. Hendrickson played high school baseball and Sen. Kefauver played both baseball and football.

There were kids from Jackson, Tenn., and they were greeted by Sen. Kefauver, also of the committee. "I'm sure the Babe got his thrills even while he was under 16, on the ball field instead of on dimly lit street corners," Kefauver told them. "You don't get into trouble on the ball field."

Sen. William Langer of the Juvenile Delinquency Committee told me there is a higher rate increase in rural areas today than in our cities. This will surprise many as it did me.

One thing stands out in my mind with the Juvenile Delinquency Committee—senators. They are trying to reverse a disgraceful national trend. By 1960, unless that trend is reversed, 1,600,000 youngsters each year will be in trouble with the law. America cannot afford to be practical and based on common sense. The Americans believe that it is common sense to know who are your enemies and who your friends; to trust the latter and mistrust the former. The British believe with equal certainty that it is common sense to treat foreign politics as pragmatic science, where each problem should be judged dispassionately on its merits.

There was something inspiring about the Babe, and yet the problem of delinquency could easily have overwhelmed him if he hadn't been steered right. I think too much stress—too many headlines—on the destructive side have hurt the kids. Certainly the scare headlines had to be used. Communities had to be made aware of the problem. But now I say, let's bury those headlines. In one way they multiply the problem, make phony heroes of more kids.

Though there is no one cure for juvenile delinquency, the more playing fields we have, the fewer delinquents we'll have, I'm sure.

MARQUIS CHILDS

El Glaoui Upholds France In Morocco

MARRAKECH, Morocco—Hadj Thami El Glaoui, pasha of Marrakech, is one of the last feudal overlords who has survived into the latter half of the 20th century. Whether he is a puppet of the French, as some observers say, or whether he is actually a power to whom the French rulers must defer, there is no doubt about the Glaoui's conviction of his own authority.

He says that the people of Morocco are loyal to him and to the present sultan, Ben Arafat, whom he helped to put on the throne after his enemy, the former sultan, Ben Youssef, was deposed. In a talk with this reporter El Glaoui said that any effort to supplant Ben Arafat, as Moroccan independence leaders are demanding, would result in civil war.

Even though El Glaoui is now 86, one can understand why Gen. Walter Bedell Smith when he first met him during World War II spoke of him as displaying greater natural qualities of leadership and authority than any man he had ever met.

If the French had ever seriously considered changing sultans, once again, the Glaoui has made it virtually impossible to do so.

In a letter published following a talk with President General Francis LaCoste, the Glaoui recorded his satisfaction as to assurances given him that no change would be made.

But at the same time the Istiqlal, or independence leaders, in exile such as Ali El Fassi and Ahmed Balafredi, who was reported conferring with the French in Madrid and Geneva, insist that a precondition for any negotiation must be to bring the former sultan from exile in Madagascar to France for the first conferences.

This is the trap in which the French find themselves in their troubled protectorate where for many months acts of violence and sabotage have been increasing.

To the Glaoui, who has demonstrated his loyalty to the French for more than 40 years, the one answer is force and more force. He criticizes the French for failing since World War II to take the strong measures essential to maintain order and peace.

Marshal Jullian when he was president general wanted to be strong, El Glaoui says. "But there was a weak government in Paris and nothing was done. The consequence was more street.

The French do not want independence. They realize they are dependent on the French. It is only a few troublemakers and Communists in the cities who are responsible for all this. If the French do not show the strength that is necessary, then I shall have to look for friends elsewhere—to America or Great Britain.

In this country with the roar of American jets in the sky overhead and the primitive, almost pre-biblical, past on village and farm, El Glaoui speaks for the feudal countryside. It is said that he can summon 10,000 to 20,000 armed horsemen to his side and at his word they would ride against the cities.

These are the two worlds of the Morocco which the French cannot leave and where, it sometimes seems, they cannot stay. In the cities—Casablanca, with a million population, rivals Marseilles as the second city in the French union—is a restless crowd, their tribal pattern shattered, wholly or partially unemployed, living in shanty towns, susceptible to agitators and fanatics. While life in the back country is harsh, at least there the old way of life is preserved and the suspicion of the uprooted city proletariat is deep. One of El Glaoui's chief objections to the deposed sultan is his failure to live up to the tenets of the Moslem religion.

As we talk a servant passes with tea strongly sweetened, the favorite Arab drink, and small pastries. As we come out onto the portico of the palace one of the Glaoui's handsome cars is waiting to take us back to the hotel and as we pass out of the enclosure and into the crowded streets of the quarter the bystanders all turn and bow low in the direction of the passing car.

It is such a strange world, this infusion of the 5th or 6th century and the 20th century. The big public square teams with life that has scarcely changed in 1,500 years. At night by the light of flares story-tellers, some accompanying themselves on two-stringed lutes, recite the old stories. Here, also, is the booth of the vendor of medicines, including powdered rams horn as an aphrodisiac, old before the time of Christ.

Political solutions to one side. The real dilemma is how to reconcile the old and the new, how to integrate the uprooted masses in the city and the simple peasant of the back country. No one has any simple answer to that one.

AS OTHERS SEE IT

Two Voices Are There

Editor's note: The United States does not see eye-to-eye with Great Britain on Far East policy and co-existence with Communism. The British see it differently—how differently. The London Times explains in the following article.

It is worth while to look back on the British and American reactions both to the Geneva settlement and to the Huaihai shooting.

They were different in kind and in degree. It is a mistake to minimize these differences, since they are the outcome of tradition and geography and will recur. They are part of the raw material with which the Anglo-American alliance must deal, not a reason for derailing the alliance's vitality.

American condemnation of Communist China represents a firm conviction that the Chinese Communists (and probably their Russian colleagues also) are people outside the borders of civilized law. Their aims, it is believed, are inconsistent with the comity of nations, and therefore their word, whether they speak as ideologists or state leaders, is in no case to be trusted.

To attempt to reach formal agreements with them, as at Berlin and Geneva, is probably at best a waste of time. The only form of coexistence possible is the vigilant aloofness which the Roman Empire maintained against the Goths, Picts, and other tribes beyond the limes.

The British view, while no less wary of Communist intentions and no less ready to resist a clear case of Communist aggression, tends to oppose the concept of a world divided between sheep and goats—between countries with which it is possible and impossible to make agreements.

British experience suggests that international agreements can be used to reconcile conflicting interests as well as to set the seal on interests held in common. Some of the most durable of British agreements—such as those with France in 1904 and Russia in 1907—have sprung out of conflict. On this reasoning coexistence can be something more than the negative avoidance of war.

Both points of view can claim to be practical and based on common sense. The Americans believe that it is common sense to know who are your enemies and who your friends; to trust the latter and mistrust the former. The British believe with equal certainty that it is common sense to treat foreign politics as pragmatic science, where each problem should be judged dispassionately on its merits.

These two attitudes are the natural outcomes of two distinct historical traditions. In the years when Americans lived in self-sufficient isolation they learned to regard with horror what seemed to them to be the jungle of quarreling nation states outside.

When eventually, they were obliged to step into the jungle themselves they made two implied conditions—that the jungle beasts should acknowledge the rule of law, and that this law should be a moral one. From this derives the American fondness for declarations of principle—such as the Kellogg Pact and the Caracas resolution outlawing Communism in the Americas—which other subscribing governments sometimes feel awkward or unnecessary.

Britain, having had for hundreds of years to live side by side with an unsettled Europe and to watch over scattered oversea dominions, has usually avoided universal principles as a guide for policy, preferring certain pragmatic maxims.

It would be hard to find two committees more important to Oregon. Yet, Republicans admit Cordon is in trouble. They explain that he hasn't campaigned, and that he has stayed in Washington so much that the younger people don't know him. He also toyed for a long time with the idea of not running again, which slowed up his campaign.

They are confident he will pull through, arguing that in his long tenure he has almost surely done something for the influential people in every town in Oregon. "Wayne Morse gets the publicity," one said, "but Cordon got things for people, even under the Democrats."

It is probable, also, that Sen. Cordon would like to have some counter-ammunition to Maurine

(Copyright 1954, by U. F. Syndicate, Inc.)

It is a fair guess that, when the Maine elections are over in September, if Sen. Cordon dispatches an SOS to the far Atlantic shore, Sen. Smith will respond. She is described as popular in Oregon, not because she is a woman or a liberal, but because she is the kind of sane and diligent legislator that she is.

It is probable, also, that Sen. Cordon would like to have some counter-ammunition to Maurine

They are confident he will pull through, arguing that in his long tenure he has almost surely done something for the influential people in every town in Oregon. "Wayne Morse gets the publicity," one said, "but Cordon got things for people, even under the Democrats."

Mr. Cordon is hammering the public power issue. Republicans discount it all through the Northwest. They realize that Cordon is very important to them and the issue, too: they will pull out all the stops to help re-elect him.

It is a fair guess that, when the Maine elections are over in September, if Sen. Cordon dispatches an SOS to the far Atlantic shore, Sen. Smith will respond. Roads And Bridges

Southeastern Nebraska was having its troubles. Its graveled roads, particularly in the case of one or two counties, were disintegrating as a result of days of heavy downpours. And the same overabundance of moisture had played hob with bridges.

It appeared that most of these roads needing attention did not fall within the classification of star mail routes, for which the Schroeder law adopted by the Legislature some years ago made provision. But the Schroeder law, earmarking a substantial amount of gasoline tax revenue for the improvement of highway facilities in the rural areas, has come in more and more for criticism because certain of its provisions are so rigid that road money that could be used advantageously elsewhere cannot be spent, except as specifically earmarked.

These counties face a real problem in the replacement of bridges and culverts which have been swept away by flood waters, and in restoring highways that are in poor condition to an acceptable state of maintenance. The need for revenue is urgent but we doubt that the people of Nebraska as a whole will approve any additional gasoline tax. In that case, local communities would have only one choice. Either they would be compelled to raise the additional funds to do the job themselves, or hope that a restudy of conditions results in greater elasticity in the use of highway funds.

Lengthening Shadows

In Brazil Tuesday President Vargas, a warm, devoted friend of Uncle Sam, faced with mounting pressures inside Brazil itself and on the international level, pulled a pistol from his pocket and put a bullet through his heart. Thus ended a long and periodically stormy rule in the largest of the South American republics, rule invariably friendly to the United States.

It was not immediately clear what had happened. Vargas ruled Brazil with an iron hand, setting aside constitutional processes when such action seemed necessary to him, but there was little doubt of his deep, genuine sympathies for Brazil's masses and his continued long fight to improve their status. There were some Communist disorders immediately following his suicide, disorders which were put down quickly.

But despite the reassuring reports that come from Washington, it was apparent that things are not going too well for us in other quarters of the world. We suffered a real blow in Indo-China, the loss of face in much of Asia, and possibly before all the dreary business is over, the loss of much or all of Asia. No carefully prepared words can wipe out the fact that in Indo-China, the United States took the worst reverse it has encountered since Russian and Chinese Communist aggression joined hands.

Nor is that all.

The European Defense Community treaty was on the rocks. A portion of the American press and some of the news analysts had given that battle up for lost. We console ourselves by making light of its importance. Why strive to give it life, it is said in some quarters, when France, which should be more interested than any other nation in the European Defense Community

Of Men And Things

By J. E. LAWRENCE

Congratulations to those western Nebraska districts which were reported in the news columns as having turned thumbs down on the irrigation water loan proposal by the Casper-Alcova Irrigation District of Wyoming. It appears to have water to spare for dry or inadequately supplied ditches in western Nebraska. But through the intervention of local officials representing the Bureau of Reclamation, it also appears that it wants its pound of flesh at the expense of thirsty neighbors.

Specifically the spokesmen for Nebraska users said that a "junior right" clause placed in the loan agreement was the root of the trouble. Under that clause Nebraska irrigation districts would be forced to alter their water rights and to make them junior to those of the Wyoming district for the amount of water borrowed. In certain instances that modification could be very serious. It may mean that sugar beet and potato growers in that upper Platte Valley will reduce the yields from these crops and result in total loss in isolated instances unless there are frequent rains. That appears to be an exorbitant price to pay for maintaining senior water rights, but actually in the uncertainties of recent Missouri Basin development, and the growing interest in Colorado and Wyoming in expanding their irrigation domains, the position of Nebraska's districts is justified. We outdate Colorado and Wyoming when it comes to irrigation. We have prior rights to water—a prior right established by long usage. To sacrifice it would be foolhardy even in a temporary sense, if the temporary arrangement later should establish precedent.

There is one shining example of the direction taken by the Eisenhower administration. It talks long and loudly about the benefits of local participation. That talk lights a responsive spark in the hearts of the governors of these basin states, naturally, since local negotiation by contrast with any centralized program of authority leaves things, so they reason, pretty much in their hands. The compact approach to water use in the Missouri and its tributaries sounds good, has a most appealing ring, in fact, but because Nebraska was first in the field in establishing its irrigation rights, it has much to lose and little to gain.

Nebraska's priorities in water usage for irrigation are of vital consequence to this state. Two or three side crops—sugar beets and potatoes, to say nothing of alfalfa and corn—in the central and upper Platte Valleys are dependent upon irrigation year in and year out. Fortunately

Congress in the eleventh-hour rush failed to pass the enabling legislation required for drafting compacts between the basin states. That means the new Congress will have to act and the likelihood of its acting in due time to procure approval by the legislatures of the individual basin states is slim. But here in this field is the issue of future irrigation development in Nebraska, not only its bearing upon a prosperous agriculture but actually over the next 50 years vitally important to industrial expansion where industry itself calls for huge amounts of water. All this is ahead—not behind—a basic factor in determining the outline of things to be in Nebraska in 1975 or a quarter of a century later. Thus far only those individually interested have devoted the thought it so richly deserves to the proposed compact program for the Missouri Basin.

A governor and a legislature are clothed with the authority to take Nebraska into a compact or to reject it. Once in, Nebraska is there to stay for all time. And if it develops that our neighbors to the west and to the north have done a better job of bartering for water than Nebraska, then it will be our nose for it.

No Delinquency Cure But Control Possible

Editor's note: While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation his column is being supplied by guest writers. Today Mrs. Babe Ruth discusses juvenile delinquency.

ford to lose the good citizenship of these boys.

THE BABE HAD A TOUGH START

I wonder how many kids in America today know anything more about Babe Ruth than that he symbolized the home run?

The babe meant more than that to an older generation in his glory years—a big, good-natured orphan who learned to play ball at St. Mary's Industrial School in Baltimore.

What he stood for then, in what we have come to know as the golden age, was a blessed land of opportunity. Baseball made the Babe, and the Babe in turn made baseball.

Like so many kids out of broken homes, the Babe might have got into trouble, real trouble, but for the guidance and understanding of the brothers of St. Mary's. He owed much to Brother Mattias, and to the Brothers Paul, Albert and Gilbert.

The taught him the moral values; they gave him religious training. They encouraged him to play ball in his free hours. He was not a good student, but he learned to distinguish between the good and the bad, and by the time he was 19 he was ready to make his way in professional baseball.

We visited Sen. Hennings of the same committee. "The Babe came of a broken home," he said, "but it didn't break him. How the Babe would hit 'em in Sportsman's Park St. Louis! That must have been his favorite ball park." The senator gave a most inspiring talk to the group of youngsters from Joplin, Mo. I am sure they will remember the sage remarks as long as they live. Sen. Hennings was a track star at Cornell—Sen. Hendrickson played high school baseball and Sen. Kefauver played both baseball and football.

I don't know how old the Babe was when he set his mind in the right direction, but I'd guess it was under 16. That's why I'm so happy to have the Babe's name perpetuated by the Babe Ruth League, sponsored by the Coca-Cola company, for those vital years of adolescent development. They get to play ball in an organized way; they get good coaching, and most of all they don't ever get to feel they're unwanted.

These were the elements the Babe remembered of his years at St. Mary's. He would tell me of the kids he had left behind. He often went back there, but most of those kids were no longer there. Still, he felt better for it.

There was something inspiring about the Babe, and yet the problem of delinquency could easily have overwhelmed him if he hadn't been steered right. I think too much stress—too many headlines—on the destructive side have hurt the kids. Certainly the scare headlines had to be used. Communities had to be made aware of the problem. But now I say, let's bury those headlines. In one way they multiply the problem, make phony heroes of more kids.

Though there is no one cure for juvenile delinquency, the more playing fields we have, the fewer delinquents we'll have, I'm sure. (Copyright, 1954, By Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

MARQUIS CHILDS

El Glaoui Upholds France In Morocco

MARRAKECH, Morocco—Hadj Thami El Glaoui, pasha of Marrakech, is one of the last feudal overlords who has survived into the latter half of the 20th century. Whether he is a puppet of the French, as some observers say, or whether he is actually a power to whom the French rulers must defer, there is no doubt about the Glaoui's conviction of his own authority.

He says that the people of Morocco are loyal to him and to the present sultan, Ben Arafah, whom he helped to put on the throne after his enemy, the former sultan, Ben Youssef, was deposed. In a talk with this reporter El Glaoui said that any effort to supplant Ben Arafah, as Moroccan independence leaders are demanding, would result in civil war.

Even though El Glaoui is now 86, one can understand why Gen. Walter Bedell Smith when he first met him during World War II spoke of him as displaying greater natural qualities of leadership and authority than any man he had ever met.

If the French had ever seriously considered changing sultans, once again, the Glaoui has made it virtually impossible to do so.

In a letter published following a talk with President General Francis LaCoste, the Glaoui recorded his satisfaction as to assurances given him that no change would be made. But at the same time the Istiqlal, or independence leaders, in exile such as Allal El Fassi and Ahmed Balafred, who was reported conferring with the French in Madrid and Geneva, insist that a precondition for any negotiation must be to bring the former sultan from exile in Madagascar to France for the first conferences.

This is the trap in which the French find themselves in their troubled protectorate where for many months acts of violence and sabotage have been increasing.

To the Glaoui, who has demonstrated his loyalty to the French for more than 40 years, the one answer is force and more force. He criticizes the French for failing since World War II to take the strong measures essential to maintain order and peace.

"Marshal Juin when he was resident general wanted to be strong," El Glaoui says. "But there was a weak government in Paris and nothing was done. The consequence was more unrest."

The Moroccans do not want independence. They realize they are dependent on the French. It is only a few troublemakers and Communists in the cities who are responsible for all this. If the French do not show the strength that is necessary, then I shall have to look for friends elsewhere—America or Great Britain.

In this country with the roar of American jets in the sky overhead and the primitive, almost pre-biblical, past on village and farm, El Glaoui speaks for the feudal countryside. It is said that he can summon 10,000 to 20,000 armed horsemen to his side and at his word they would ride against the cities.

These are the two worlds of the Morocco which the French cannot leave and where, it sometimes seems, they cannot stay—the cities—Casablanca, with a million population, rivals Marseilles as the second city in the French union—is a restless crowd, their tribal pattern shattered, wholly or partially unemployed, living in shanty towns, susceptible to agitators and fanatics. While life in the back country is harsh, at least there the old way of life is preserved and the suspicion of the uprooted city proletariat is deep. One of El Glaoui's chief objections to the deposed sultan is his failure to live up to the tenets of the Moslem religion.

As we talk a servant passes mint tea strongly sweetened, the favorite Arab drink, and small pastries. As we come out onto the portico of the palace one of the Istiqlal's handsome cars is waiting to take us back to the hotel and as we pass out of the enclosure and into the crowded streets of the quarter the bystanders all turn and bow low in the direction of the passing car.

It is such a strange world, this infusion of the 5th or 6th century and the 20th century. The big public square teems with life that has scarcely changed in 1,500 years. At night by the light of flares story-tellers, some accompanying themselves on two-stringed lutes, recite the old stories. Here, also, is the booth of the vendor of medicines, including powdered rams horn as an aphrodisiac, old before the time of Christ.

"Marshal Juin when he was resident general wanted to be strong," El Glaoui says. "But there was a weak government in Paris and nothing was done. The consequence was more unrest."

The Moroccans do not want independence. They realize they are dependent on the French. It is only a few troublemakers and Communists in the cities who are responsible for all this. If the French do not show the strength that is necessary, then I shall have to look for friends elsewhere—America or Great Britain.

AS OTHERS SEE IT

Two Voices Are There

Editor's note: The United States does not see eye-to-eye with Great Britain on Far East policy and co-existence with Communism. The British see it differently—how differently. The London Times explains in the following article.

It is worth while to look back on the British and American reactions both to the Geneva settlement and to the Hainan shootings.

The differences have been partly shaped by recent history. The Chinese Communists inflicted a major or diplomatic defeat on the United States, and it is always natural to wish to see defeats avenged. Britain's direct interest in China has been greatly reduced since the war and the end of sovereignty in India.

Both outlooks have their obvious dangers. If every international action is judged by a strict code of law and morals, all good actions—or nations—must be rewarded and all bad ones punished. This leaves no half-way house between fraternal alliances and open war—and for the matter of that, no half-way house is left in war between total victory and total defeat. The world inevitably becomes divided into police and gangsters.

But the example of the Holy Alliance shows that an attempt by some nations to order the world along moral lines of their own choosing is apt to split the alliance without reforming the world.

Oregon Demos Pin Hope On Neuberger

WASHINGTON — If Democrats were picking a sleeper as of now in a campaign in which they expect to produce some upsets, they would name Richard Neuberger, who is half of an effective husband-and-wife legislative team in Oregon. Neuberger is challenging the veteran Republican senator Guy Cordon in a state which has not sent a Democrat to the Senate since 1914.

The current excitement in the Oregon campaign concerns the gentlewoman from Maine, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith. It was announced by the Cordon forces in Oregon that she would be coming there to campaign for him. The Neuberger forces reacted swiftly with a comparison of Mrs. Smith's liberal voting record and the Cordon conservatism.

Guy Cordon is typical of the kind of senators people associated with Republicanism before the noisy McCarthy variety found its way into the party. He looks like a small-town lawyer, which he is, and he gets places by hard work and patient attention to detail. The cocktail circuit here would have trouble recalling his name, but he has achieved high places on two powerful committees, Appropriations and Interior-Insular Affairs.

It would be hard to find two committees more important to Oregon. Yet, Republicans admit Cordon is in trouble. They explain that he hasn't campaigned, and that he has stayed in Washington so much that the younger people don't know him. He also toed for a long time with the idea of not running again, which slowed up his campaign.

They are confident he will pull through, arguing that in his long tenure he has almost surely done something for the influential people in every town in Oregon. "Wayne Morse gets the publicity," one said, "but Cordon got things for people, even under the Democrats."

Mr. Neuberger is hammering the public power issue. Republicans discount it all through the Northwest. They realize that Cordon is very important to them and the issue, too; they will pull out all the stops to help re-elect him. (Copyright, 1954, by U.F. Syndicate, Inc.)

Ed Reed

Seeing Red

Bladen, N.C.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: In nearly every newspaper we receive these days, there is a report of a truck or car accident. Sometimes it's two cars colliding head-on at intersections, something that could be avoided if those approaching the highway would stop and look. And most cars are driving at a high rate of speed, which makes stopping virtually impossible. Every fast car driver should be fined and have his license taken away for good, in my opinion, because he is a menace to public safety.

How to cope with the present danger is a matter to be looked into, also. Maybe if all cars and trucks were painted a bright red, it would help. Red denotes danger and shows up for a long distance.

German Revels Restrictions On Christian Church In Russia

... Reds Boosting Anti-Religion Drive

EVANSTON, Ill. (INS)—A West German church leader revealed Tuesday the tight restrictions and violent anti-religious propaganda under which the Christian church exists in Soviet Russia.

Dr. Gustave W. Heinemann told the World Council of Churches Assembly the Russian Orthodox Church is under the jurisdiction of a state bureau and is specifically forbidden to engage in any instruction among the youth, charitable work or so-called religious propaganda.

Despite this, he said, there still are "millions" of Christians in Russia, and the estimated 20,000 orthodox churches are filled to capacity on weekdays as well as Sundays.

Dr. Heinemann, mayor of Essen and a member of the council of the Evangelical Church in Germany, told of his observations on a visit to Russia with a group of six Germans at the invitation of the patriarch of the Russian Orthodox Church.

Controlled Condition

He said he found that the church, after years of hard violent persecution, has been living since 1943, under legally controlled conditions.

These controls include forcing the children to "refrain from every expression concerning the official industrial or cultural life of its people."

However, he said the church has accepted this and "has transferred the loyalty which it once showed the Czarist state to the Bolshevik state."

Dr. Heinemann said that although this is hard for the West to understand, it apparently "is more in accordance with their history and theology than any other.

He also told of anti-religious propaganda through the schools, newspapers and televisions and said this is being stepped up. But he added that many orthodox priests told him that "they were convinced that their church would live to the end of time."

Influence Spreading

Another top church official warned that the Communist influence is spreading in East Asian churches and said Christians must be thoroughly educated in the real nature of Communism.

In a report prepared for the assembly, Dr. Rajah B. Manikam said Communism "has a great appeal" to some Asian Christians "since they too . . . are fighting for social and economic justice in an area where in general poverty rules the masses."

Dr. Manikam declared:

"They fail to see that Communism perverts the struggle for justice to serve its own purposes and finally ends in militant atheism."

The report was an accounting of Dr. Manikam's work and observations as joint secretary in East Asia for the council and the International Missionary Council.

Two other speakers called for world evangelism to fulfill the Christian mission. They were the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Ransom of New York, general secretary of the International Missionary Council, and the Rev. Dr. Chandu Ray of Lahore, Pakistan, secretary of the Bible Society of India, Pakistan, Burma and Ceylon.

Segregation Ruling

EVANSTON, Ill. (INS)—An unequivocal condemnation of racial segregation in churches appears likely to be put before the World Council of Churches Assembly.

If adopted, it would be the first such flat condemnation ever issued by an ecumenical (world wide) church group.

Dr. Linton Pope, dean of the Yale University Divinity School, revealed at a news conference that there is a strong desire among members of the assembly's section studying racial and ethnic tensions to issue such a statement.

The racial problem is before the council for the first time as a separate item and is compounded by the fact that some members of the council openly endorse a policy of segregation.

He also told of anti-religious propaganda through the schools, newspapers and televisions and said this is being stepped up. But he added that many orthodox priests told him that "they were convinced that their church would live to the end of time."

Influence Spreading

Another top church official warned that the Communist influence is spreading in East Asian churches and said Christians must be thoroughly educated in the real nature of Communism.

In a report prepared for the assembly, Dr. Rajah B. Manikam said Communism "has a great appeal" to some Asian Christians "since they too . . . are fighting for social and economic justice in an area where in general poverty rules the masses."

Dr. Manikam declared:

"They fail to see that Communism perverts the struggle for justice to serve its own purposes and finally ends in militant atheism."

The report was an accounting of Dr. Manikam's work and observations as joint secretary in East Asia for the council and the International Missionary Council.

Two other speakers called for world evangelism to fulfill the Christian mission. They were the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Ransom of New York, general secretary of the International Missionary Council, and the Rev. Dr. Chandu Ray of Lahore, Pakistan, secretary of the Bible Society of India, Pakistan, Burma and Ceylon.

Segregation Ruling

EVANSTON, Ill. (INS)—An unequivocal condemnation of racial segregation in churches appears likely to be put before the World Council of Churches Assembly.

If adopted, it would be the first such flat condemnation ever issued by an ecumenical (world wide) church group.

Dr. Liston Pope, dean of the Yale University Divinity School, revealed at a news conference that there is a strong desire among members of the assembly's section studying racial and ethnic issues to issue such a statement.

The racial problem is before the council for the first time as a separate item and is compounded by the fact that some members of the council openly endorse a policy of segregation.

Peiping Accuses U.S.

HONG KONG (INS)—Peiping Radio quoted the Chinese Communist Foreign Office as accusing the United States of "sabotaging" the Korean armistice. It based the charge on an Aug. 3 statement of U. S. Secretary of State Dulles which it said indicated he favored dissolution of neutral nations supervisory commission. South Korea has demanded abolition of the commission, charging that Communist members of the commission were using their privileges to spy in South Korea.

Heavy Rains Bolster State Crop Outlook

Hay, Feed Prospects Are Good

Heavy rainfall during the past three weeks has greatly improved the Nebraska crop outlook, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics reported.

Precipitation this month has ranged up to two or three times the normal amount in the south half of the eastern two-thirds of the state, and has been normal to above normal in the remainder of the state.

Prior to the rains, a shortage of hay and feed had threatened in the state, but now the outlook is for a supply ranging from ample to surplus, the report continued.

Record Yields Possible

"Corn that had not been damaged too badly has improved and some reports from northeastern Nebraska indicate that record yields may be harvested," the bureau said.

The heat and drought slowed progress of the crop, and the wet, cool weather of the last three weeks likewise has slowed maturity. There is considerable late corn, especially in the southeastern counties.

Several counties have started to cut corn for silage. Corn borers are severe in northeastern Nebraska, and corn earworms are doing some damage.

Sorghum Improvement Marked

Other comment: Sorghum for grain has made a marked improvement. Sorghum for forage also has improved, excepting where previous damage from drought was severe in some western counties.

Soybeans also show a marked improvement, and a record crop is expected.

A splendid cutting of alfalfa is now assured.

The wild hay harvest is nearly completed, with yields ranging from good in the northern portion of the Sandhills to poor or fair in the balance of the state.

Soil moisture conditions are now excellent for seeding throughout the state. Land plowed for winter wheat will be in excellent condition for fall seeding.

Precipitation throughout Nebraska during the past week included:

Winter Cover Crop Payment Is Approved

The Department of Agriculture has announced a new measure to help meet the growing threat of erosion on diverted acres through the winter months.

This measure will apply to an undetermined number of counties in Nebraska. Robert Zink of the conservation division of the state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office said Tuesday that county ASC committees are authorized to include special winter-cover planting under the Agricultural Conservation Program.

Conservation Problem This practice will permit seeding of barley, oats or rye on cropland which will be shifted from crop production to cover crops in 1955. The thousands of acres taken out of wheat production by acreage allotments have posed a conservation problem, due to their exposure to wind damage.

The winter-seeded crops planted under this program will not necessarily have to be maintained through the 1955 crop season. The land, however, will have to be replanted to another cover crop if the winter cover is not maintained.

This cover crop program may be used only by those counties which have unobligated ACP funds available for the payments. The maximum federal share of the special planting has been set at $1.50 per acre.

Meanwhile officials of the Gering-Fort Laramie Irrigation District, also part of the North Platte Project, disclosed they have refused a water loan proposal similar to the one offered Goshen. The Pathfinder district in the North Platte Project turned down the same proposal last week.

OGALLALA, Neb. (AP)—Taxes of Ogallala property owners will be $7.36 more than $1,000 of assessed valuation than last year.

On the other hand, real estate valuations have been cut 15 per cent for tax purposes.

The new Ogallala levy is 62.08 mills compared with 45.41 in 1953.

The operations building, a wood frame structure, will be 155 feet by 38 feet with a partial second story 68 by 38.

The wood and steel frame academic building will be 175 by 40. The bids include installation of utilities which must be ready by 212 days after letting of the contract. The remainder of the buildings are to be ready in 330 days under the contract.

Two Nebraska Appearances Set For Nixon

Vice President Richard Nixon will make two tub-thumping public appearances in Nebraska for Nebraska Republican candidates on Monday, Sept. 20, according to W. W. Spear, Republican state chairman.

Nixon will speak at a midday public meeting in Grand Island and make a public address in Omaha during the evening.

Spear said Nixon would review the accomplishments of the 83rd Congress and give Nebraska Republican candidates "boost."

"Nixon's presence in Nebraska shows that the Eisenhower administration is back on our candidates 100 per cent and we're proud to have him here," the state chairman said.

Nixon's Nebraska visit will follow by four days that of Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson's appearance. Benson will be the guest speaker Thursday, Sept. 16, at the Republican post-primary convention in Norfolk.

Weather Ahead

Extended forecast for Nebraska:

Temperatures will average from near normal in the west to 3 to 5 above in the east Wednesday through Sunday, with only minor day to day changes. Precipitation will average from .25 to .50 of an inch in the western sections to .75 in the southeast, occurring mostly as afternoon and night-time thundershowers intermittently during the period.

Path Cleared For Goshen Water Loan

CASPER, Wyo. (AP)—The way has been cleared for a loan of 25,000 acre-feet of water from the Casper-Alcova Irrigation District to the Goshen District in the North Platte Project.

W. J. Wehrli, attorney for the Casper-Alcova District, announced modification of a court injunction which prohibited sale or loan of any water from the district. The injunction was obtained several weeks ago after the Reclamation Bureau ordered the sale of Casper-Alcova water to several North Platte irrigation units.

The modification refers only to the Goshen loan contract and the injunction remains in effect for other water sales or loans, Wehrli said.

This cover crop program may be used only by those counties which have unobligated ACP funds available for the payments. The maximum federal share of the special planting has been set at $1.50 per acre.

Meanwhile officials of the Gering-Fort Laramie Irrigation District, also part of the North Platte Project, disclosed they have refused a water loan proposal similar to the one offered Goshen. The Pathfinder district in the North Platte Project turned down the same proposal last week.

Hike Forecast In Nebraska Turkey Output

The State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics reported a recent survey indicated Nebraska producers will raise six per cent more turkeys than in 1953.

The survey indicated also that there is preference for the heavy breeds.

And the trend toward larger flocks continues, with more producers devoting their entire time to raising of turkeys. There are comparatively few small farm flocks, the report added.

Nebraska producers indicated they will raise 368,000 birds this year, compared to 319,000 in 1953.

The July heat wave took a rather heavy toll in some flocks, particularly in the central part of the state. But losses from diseases have been comparatively light to date.

"With the cooler weather, turkeys are making a nice gain and indications point to somewhat earlier marketing of birds," the report said.

Nationally, farmers are raising 61,045,000 turkeys this year, nine per cent more than last year.

The previous record crop was 69,969,000 in 1952.

Sanders Is Satisfied With Radar Use

Col. C. J. Sanders of the State Safety Patrol Tuesday expressed complete satisfaction with the use of radar in speed-law enforcement. "While it has enabled the officers to check speed violations, it has saved wear on patrol cars and has done away with much of the danger to officers in clocking speeders," he commented.

Weather No Effect

"Many drivers are under certain misconceptions which well might be clarified," Col. Sanders continued.

"Weather has no effect on radar, nor does darkness. Grounding devices, dragging chains, ball bearings in hub caps and a foil attached to cars doesn't interfere in the slightest with radar. In fact, such dodges could be evidence of intent to violate the law," he added.

Expect Them Anywhere

The radar units can be expected anywhere on the highways, Sanders warned.

"It is probable that most violators will keep a sharp lookout for cars parked by the roadside and be prepared for quick deceleration. But the best means of beating radar that we know of is to drive within the Nebraska speed limits," he commented.

Indian Liquor Ban Still Holds

The attorney general's office held

Tuesday that a Municipal Court ruling that the Nebraska ban on sale of liquor to Indians is unconstitutional is not binding on a statewide basis.

Omaha municipal judge ruled that, in light of recent congressional action, the prohibition against sale of liquor to Indians in Nebraska is unconstitutional.

The attorney general's opinion noted that state and federal laws prohibiting sales of liquor to Indians have, without exception, been declared constitutional.

"Insofar as state laws are concerned, they have been held to be a valid exercise of the police powers of the state," Assistant Attorney Gen. Homer Hamilton wrote.

It may be that such laws are outmoded and unnecessary at this time, but when a controversy resolves into one of legislative wisdom or expediency, it then becomes an exclusive legislative problem, he added.

Pickrell Licensee Cited

The state liquor commission Monday cited for hearing on Sept. 9, Serril H. Ridgley, Pickrell, on charges of selling intoxicating liquor to a minor.

STAN DELAPLANE'S

POSTCARD

The first recorded tourist to Mexico was Mr. Herman Cortez in the Spanish year of 1519. He marched across the Mexican mountains on sore feet and borrowed money. He noted that the local customs were very confusing.

Not much change in the land of the serpent. Tourists still come over the mountains on sore feet and credit from a friendly banker. The customs have changed somewhat from Aztec days. But they are no less confusing.

No matter how I try to keep up on the odd logic of bellboys, taxi drivers and chambermaids, Mexico is always one jump ahead of me.

The Pan American DC-6 slid down the velvet Mexican night and landed on the long runway beside Mexico City's beautiful new airport. It was after midnight. Some helpful Pan American officials rushed me through customs and a Mexican taxi whacked me through the city to the Hotel Monte Cassino.

There were a good many messages waiting. Would I be prepared to go to Nueva Ixtapan at 6 a.m.? The journey to Guatamala would be delayed a couple of days. Jack Ruddy, the Salinas-Rocha wheel, had phoned. So had Mr. William O'Dwyer, the former Ambassador.

"A line please," I told the operator. "Si, señor," she said. There was a muffled click and the phone went dead. No amount of prodding and punching brought it to life.

I banged it on the table a couple of times. I had little hope. Mexico

I hanged it on the table a couple of times. I had little hope. Mexican telephones seldom react to brutality. You must be simpatico. Mexican telephones are courted like a woman. You pretend like the other way and pick them up gently.

When a Mexican telephone goes temperamental, you put it down and let it cool off.

"A line please," I said. "Certainly, señor," she said. This time I got a dial tone. I dialed Mr. Ruddy at his home.

A great burst of music came over the telephone. "Bueno," said the voice.

"Senor Ruddy, please."

"Not here, señor."

"When does he return?"

"Who knows, Señor. He is expected?"

"Who is this?" I said.

"The Club Mil y Una Noches, Señor."

"Oh," I said. The Mil y Una Noches is one of Mexico's more sinful cabarets. Mexican telephones dial with a good deal of abandon. It is like throwing a handful of birdshot into the night.

I woke early in the morning with a cock crowing under the window. Even in the heart of the metropolis, the crowing rooster breaks the dawn.

The plumbing in the bathroom was giving off little sobbing sounds. It sounded a little like Johnny Ray singing "Cry" through a burlap bag.

I went in to investigate. Water was running over the edges and trickling in a half-hearted way down a drain in the middle of the floor. I called a bellboy who came up with one of those squeegee things.

He squeegeed twice and the rubber fell off.

Tractor Mishap Kills Brule Farmhand

BRULE, Neb. (AP) — Fred J. Martens, 62-year-old farmhand on the Elmer Cole farm northwest of Brule, burned to death Tuesday after the tractor he was driving hit a ditch, overturned and burst into flames.

Douglas Cole, 5, son of the farm owner, was riding with Martens on the tractor. He was taken to an Ogallala hospital, where attendants said he suffered a broken right leg, burns and shock.

Martens was driving the track back to the farm house to attach an implement and was going up an embankment leading to a gravel road when the tractor overturned.

Martens was pinned beneath the wheels and the Cole boy was caught in the steering wheel. The gasoline tank exploded and Martens was unable to free himself. The boy was able to get away.

It was not determined whether the death would be counted as a traffic fatality.

Martens is survived by his widow, three sons and two daughters.

Holdrege Businessmen To Serve 3,500 Pounds Of Buffalo Meat

LINCOLN STAR SPECIAL
HOLDREGE, Neb.—The appetizing odor of roasting buffalo meat is drifting its way over south-central Nebraska, informing everybody who can smell that a barbecue is on the fire.

Whether "barbecue" derives from French or from a Haitian word makes no difference as Holdrege businessmen are set to entertain an expected 10,000 persons Thursday at a free barbecue and "Fun Day" celebration.

Gigantic Festival
Pocketbooks will be left at home and business houses will close at noon for the gigantic festival of meat eating, free carnival rides, field events, and two dances. "It's all free," said Del Pearson, general chairman for the Chamber of Commerce and Jaycee-sponsored event.

Twenty-six quarters of buffalo meat—about 3,500 pounds—will be served on buns with the Jaycees in charge of the feed which will be held on the Roosevelt School grounds.

The buffalo meat was purchased at Custer, S. D., State Park, transported here in refrigerated truck and Barbecue Chef Rudy Sehnert is ready to take over now that it's thawed, boned and cut in 30-pound chunks.

"Patience Needed"
"Barbecuing has its secret in patience," said Sehnert, "and more patience. The meat must be well done; it can't be hurried."

Barbecue epicures will gather at long, wooden tables to feast on the buffalo. The meat will be served with beans on cardboard plates.

It's a job of giant proportions with the city's manpower being drafted to handle the entertainment fare.

Jones Traveled 5,000 Miles On Forged Orders

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Police Tuesday said a GI who went AWOL from his outfit at Mannheim, Germany, Aug. 1, and has traveled 5,000 miles on forged orders, will be turned over to Army authorities.

Det. Capt. James Reeves said Cpl. Kenneth J. Jones, 22, of Killeen, Neb., will be turned over to military police from Ft. Riley, Kan.

He said Jones was in civilian clothing when arrested by Wichita detectives at a Western Union office.

Military police at Omaha had tipped police that Jones would call for a money order, Reeves said.

Jones said his forged orders were written up by a buddy at Mannheim, the detective captain reported. Jones claims to have cleared customs three times with the phoney orders, Reeves added, because the plane in which he crossed the Atlantic was forced back once by weather.

Nary A Dull Moment

FROM where we sit there never seems to be a dull moment around town — Right now, this being the last week in August, more than a little conversation is being given to Sorority Row where rush week begins with a large bang come a week from Tuesday.

HOWEVER, the Lincoln populace is not made up entirely of the sweet young things who will become campus freshmen this year—There are other young things who, while having one ear cocked on the campus activities, have both eyes on a processional aisle down which they will be trodding before many weeks have passed. One of these soon-to-be brides is Miss Kathryn Swanson whose marriage to Jerry Druliner will take place on Sept. 25, and for whom the early weeks of September are filled to the brim with courtesies.

But our brides' book tells us that Miss Swanson is to be an honoree today when Miss Jo Jen Loder, Miss Jo Norsworthy of Gothenburg, and Mrs. Norman Lock are hostesses at a desert luncheon at the home of Mrs. Lock. Twelve guests have been invited for the luncheon and an afternoon of bridge — and the bride-elect will be presented with a hostess gift.

ANOTHER of our September brides is Miss Sandra Gadd, whose marriage to Jack Keene will take place on Saturday, Sept. 11. This is an exceedingly busy week for Miss Gadd whose party dates are numerous—But maybe we should begin with a courtesy we didn't mention last week — the Thursday night informal affair for which Mrs. Lyle Hans was hostess when she entertained 12 guests, complimenting the bride-to-be. Miss Gadd was presented with a hostess gift.

AND on Tuesday evening Miss Gadd was the honoree when Mrs. John Coover and Mrs. Robert Britton were hostesses at a dessert supper at the home of Mrs. Coover. The 10 guests were asked to bring their favorite recipes, and also presented the bride-elect with a miscellaneous shower.

IT MIGHT seem that brides have a monopoly on the morning's news, but they don't — Just learned of some guests who are in town at the moment—Mrs. Harry Prouty and her two daughters, Patti and Susan, of Phoenix, Ariz., who are spending the week in Lincoln. Mrs. Prouty and her daughters will go to Fairbury for a visit with Mrs. Prouty's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Livingston, before returning home.

Barbara Buck Wales Weds Hoyt Hultberg

of an insurance company, and the family's new address is 180 So. 25th.

From Winner, S.D., have come the Johnson family—Mr. and Mrs. Herman, and their four children, Monte, Monica, Mickey and Murray, who are exceedingly busy getting settled in their new home at 2676 Colonial Drive. Mr. Johnson, who is with Beatrice Foods, is a member of Lions Club, the American Legion, and the V.F.W. Mrs. Johnson tells us that taking care of her home and her family keeps her so busy she hasn't time for organizations.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle G. Andersen, who are at home at 1610 C St. apt. 4, didn't have far to come when they moved to Lincoln. Their former home was in Fremont where Mrs. Andersen attended Midland College before going to William Wood College at Fulton, Mo. The Andersen's are to be busy people—Mr. Andersen has a job that will utilize all of the spare moments he has between his classes at the University of Nebraska where he will be a freshman in the College of Business Administration. Mrs. Andersen will not be idle, either.

—She has found herself a full time secretarial position with an insurance company.

The only temporary family we found during our morning's meanderings, are Chief Warrant Officer and Mrs. Victor D. McGuire, and the two small feminine McGuires, Sylvia and Marcia. CWO McGuire is a career man with the United States Army and of course isn't at all sure how long his tour of duty here will be. But for the two or three—or four years they are in Lincoln, the McGuires will reside at 1626 So. 22.

She also intends to find time for her favorite sport, swimming, and with her six grandchildren in mind, she is eagerly making plans for a gala Christmas holiday. However, there will be no spare moments in her schedule for gardening—that is Mr. McVicker's responsibility, although she will stoop to pull a few weeds for him now and then.

The McVickers' children are Mrs. Frank Marsh (Shirley McVicker) of Lincoln and D. Sidney McVicker, Jr., of Sioux City, Ia., and their grandchildren are Sherry Anne, Stephen, Dory and Corwin Marsh, and Scott and Craig McVicker.

With a clear conscience and a long list of civic and club responsibilities neatly labeled, "Completed", Mrs. Dwight S. McVicker is looking forward these days to what she hopes will be a calm and unharried year with freedom to enjoy her home and grandchildren.

The immediate past president of the Nebraska Chapter of PEO, Mrs. McVicker handed over her gavel last spring to her successor with every right to be proud that the long-planned addition to the PEO Home in Beatrice became a concrete fact during her term of office. For seven years, she has served a succession of offices as a member of the state board of PEO, and is still active in Chapter DK of Lincoln, of which she is a past officer.

Mrs. McVicker also has to her credit a term of six years on the board of the Lincoln YWCA for which she was chairman of the health-education committee, and she is a past president of the Board, national honor society for senior university women.

A graduate of the University of Nebraska, where she majored in dramatics and English, she is an enthusiastic alumna member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority, of which both her daughter and daughter-in-law are members. Recently, she completed a two-year term of office as province president for the national sorority.

However, Mrs. McVicker's "leisurely" future seems to be mighty busy as currently she is energetically planning programs for the Soil Conservation Service Auxiliary, of which she is president, and with her love for the theater, she will no doubt offer her services to Lincoln's Circle Community Theater. A former member of the Bryan Memorial Hospital board, Mrs. McVicker's activities as a member of Trinity Methodist Church and its women's board will continue full force.

She also intends to find time for her favorite sport, swimming, and with her six grandchildren in mind, she is eagerly making plans for a gala Christmas holiday. However, there will be no spare moments in her schedule for gardening—that is Mr. McVicker's responsibility, although she will stoop to pull a few weeds for him now and then.

The McVickers' children are Mrs. Frank Marsh (Shirley McVicker) of Lincoln and D. Sidney McVicker, Jr., of Sioux City, Ia., and their grandchildren are Sherry Anne, Stephen, Dory and Corwin Marsh, and Scott and Craig McVicker.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Uhlman of Claytonia will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary on Sunday, Aug. 29, when they will entertain at an open house at their home. Their friends are asked to call between the hours of 2 o'clock and 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and from 7 o'clock to 9 o'clock during the evening, without further invitation.

Receiving the guests with their parents will be Mr. and Mrs. Uhlman's daughter, Carol, and son, Leon. Unable to be home for the occasion, however, will be another son, Lewis, who is serving with the armed forces at Denver.

Assisting the family with the open house arrangements is Mrs. John Shipp.

daughters, Patti and Susan, of Phoenix, Ariz., who are spending the week in Lincoln. Mrs. Prouty and her daughters will go to Fairbury for a visit with Mrs. Prouty's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Livingston, before returning home.

State To Do 10th & Cornhusker Plans, Estimate Highways Reason For Setup

By BILL DODLER
Star Staff Writer

Preliminary plans and estimate of cost will be prepared by the state highway department for construction of a new No. 10th Street intersection with the Cornhusker Highway.

While the intersection is entirely within the city limits, the state is interested in the job because the area is also a part of highways 2, 34, 77 and 6. What the intersection re-construction might cost is still a guess but the figure has been mentioned as from $75,000 to $100,000.

Hope was expressed at a meeting of city and state officials that some federal funds might be available on a matching basis for the project. Lincoln would be required to match those funds but where the city's money would come from is as yet undetermined.

$170,000 Item

There is an item of some $170,000 in this year's city budget as gas tax and registration fees for 1954-55 which is as yet unencumbered.

Welfare and Safety Director Emmett Junge stated that the ultimate thing would be to make No. 10th four-lane clear from O Street to the highway. This, however, would require construction of one new viaduct and two new bridges for which Junge holds no hope.

Noting that the intersection involved is already overburdened, Junge stated that when the new West O Street viaduct is constructed additional traffic will be sent into the No. 10 intersection over a detour route.

Capt. Willis Manchester of the police traffic department reported that the No. 10th intersection carries up to 1,500 vehicles an hour. The traffic delay at the intersection, he said, makes the corner more of a bottleneck than a critical accident center.

According to Manchester, a four lane signalized intersection is needed.

Jack Babcock Is Circlet's New Director

John Reed (Jack) Babcock, 28, young Lincoln producer and actor, has been selected as the new director of the Circlet Community Theater.

He will assume his new duties following release by the Ft. Myers Community Theater of Ft. Myers, Fla., where he served as director last winter.

Babcock, who is now box office manager for Hayloft Summer Theater, received his master's degree from the University of Nebraska in 1953. He was the first person to produce and direct a master's production thesis at the University.

Earlier this summer he was associated with the John B. Rogers Production Co., for which he directed outdoor historical pageants in Wisconsin and Michigan, including the pageant which celebrated the 100th birthday of the Republican Party.

He has directed two seasons of summer stock in Maine and acted in approximately 125 plays.

Babcock, who came to Nebraska from Long Beach, Calif., directed shows in his home state and in Colorado. He also acted in USO camp shows and Red Cross hospital shows.

At the University, he received an "Oscar" for acting awarded by the University Masquer chapter of National Collegiate Players.

He received his bachelor's degree from Colorado State College of Education at Greeley.

Babcock will succeed Karl Sit-

Sanitary District 1 Election Cost Bill May Cause Dispute

Another disputed billing of election costs may be in the making when the office of election commission assesses Sanitary District 1 its share of the cost of the Aug. 10 election.

This will be the first time the District has been asked to pay any of the cost of an election in which candidates for the District board of directors sought election. But according to Election Commissioner Harold Gillett, the billing of the District is a part of the election law and has just been overlooked in the past.

Previous to the establishment of the current election system in 1947, Gillett stated, the District board members were elected at city elections. The city, he said, had no authority to bill any one else for election cost so the matter has been carried on like that since then.

New Ruling

Gillett stated he will bill the District this year as a result of a ruling last year from the state attorney general's office. This ruling stipulated that the election commissioner must bill all governmental sub-divisions for their proportionate share of expenses according to the number of candidates on the ballot seeking election to that sub-division.

This, Gillett said, resulted in the billing of the Wyuka Cemetery for $1,400 last year. It was the first time the Cemetery received such a bill and the item is still unpaid.

The Wyuka matter, Gillett said, has been turned over to the county attorney's office.

The county pays for elections out of its general fund and money paid in for the election by the various governmental sub-divisions after the election is completed is then deposited in the county's general fund.

Sanitary District Attorney Max Kier stated that he has given the matter no study yet. If a bill is presented to the District and referred to it legal counsel, he said, the matter will be given study and, if necessary, a course of action recommended.

Gillett has not yet figured the cost to the District for the Aug. 16 primary.

N.Y. Man Proves 'Rudder' Important On Bridge Jumps

NEW YORK (INS)—A 38-year-old New York air conditioning engineer proved a theory Tuesday by leaping 160 feet into the swirling current of the East River from the Triboro Bridge and swimming ashore unhurt.

Charles Fleckenstein, who lives with his wife and five-year-old son in Astoria, told amazed policeman that a man can jump from any height into water "as long as he has a rudder."

A car robe that fluttered behind him in his spectacular leap served as a "rudder" for the World War II pilot who remarked as he was taken to a hospital for psychiatric observation:

"They laughed at the Wright brothers, too."

20 Vote Margin Challenge Fails

Final results in the 19th Legislative District primary election remained the same Tuesday night following a recanvass.

Leo Bartunek won the second place nomination over Edward L. Witte Jr. by 20 votes. The count was 784 to 764.

Both Bartunek and Witte were present at the canvass board review. Witte had challenged the count.

Witte said he accepted the final count, saying that in his opinion, the statutes provide for no further action.

Tom Adams was the first place nominee.

It was the first challenge of final returns since the present system was inaugurated.

Servicemen Here Can Now Buy Under New FHA Act

Servicemen stationed in Lincoln can take advantage of the new Federal Housing Administration Act to purchase homes, according to the state FHA director.

Although two new provisions of the act, designed specifically for servicemen, are not applicable in Lincoln because the Lincoln Air Force Base has not been designated, as yet, as a permanent base, one new section will be put to use here. State Director Robert Hastings said.

This section has provisions which enable a serviceman, who has been in the service for two years and is serving at the time, to get a loan insured by the FHA of a maximum $17,100—or 95 per cent of the purchase price.

Ervin E. Peterson, president of the Lincoln Home Builders Association, explained that previous to passage of the new law, a serviceman who had never been discharged from the service was not eligible for the 4½ per cent VA home loan.

This new section enables a serviceman to get the same benefits as former servicemen.

Peterson said more than 75 Air Force personnel are buying homes in Lincoln. He added that the rental situation is tight.

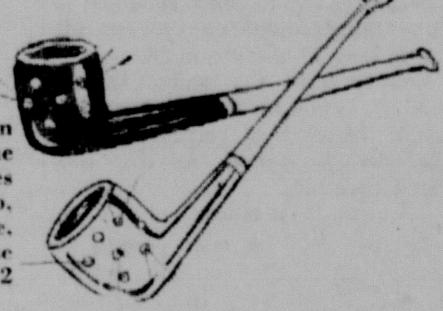

The Home Builders hope the rental situation will be eased when the first unit of their four-family dwellings reserved for servicemen is completed within two or three weeks. Peterson said that the Home Builders hope to complete four units a week after the first unit is ready for occupancy.

Joe's Censure Case Opens Tuesday On 5 Charges

WASHINGTON (INS) — Senators groups which have made past investigations of his finances and other activities against Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy served formal notice Tuesday that they will begin public hearings next Tuesday in five sets of accusations.

Chairman Arthur V. Watkins (R-Utah), made public a "notice of hearings" telling the Wisconsin Republican that he is "formally requested" to appear before the special six-member committee, so that he can be questioned about the allegations.

Watkins said the initial hearings would center around the following categories of charges which contained specifications "whittled down" from 46 accusations McCarthy's colleagues initially had made in asking the Senate to censure him.

"1. Incidents of contempt of the Senate or a senatorial committee" in his refusal to appear before

C. Hendrickson (R-NJ) as "a living miracle without brains or committee, which was set up to study the charges."

"2. Incidents of encouragement of United States employees to violate the law and their oaths of office or executive orders" by asking them over a nationwide radio and television hookup at the McCarthy-Army hearings to give him data on wrongdoing regardless of any presidential directives.

"3. Incidents involving receipt or use of confidential or classified documents or other confidential information from executive files, specifically a two and one-quarter page summary of an FBI report which McCarthy revealed was in his possession at the McCarthy-Army hearings.

"4. Incidents involving abuses of colleagues in the Senate," including his description of Sen. Ralph E. Flanders (R-Vt.), as "senile" that McCarthy "impugned the loyalty, patriotism and character" of Zwicker.

"5. Incident relating to Brig. Gen. Ralph Zwicker who as commandant of Camp Kilmer, N.J., was questioned by McCarthy about the honorable discharge of ex-Major Irving Peres, described by the senator as a "Fifth Amendment Communist." Sens. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) and Wayne Morse (Ind-Ore.) maintained that McCarthy "impugned the Senate's reputation and character" of Zwicker.

Commissioner Chris Kuhner had the protection of an armed bodyguard during the Lancaster County Board meeting Tuesday.

Dep. Sheriff Mark Meyers was on hand "just in case" during the meeting after Kuhner received a threatening telephone call at his home last Thursday night.

Kuhner said the caller threatened to "splatter me all over the place" because of something that allegedly happened at the last board meeting.

"You Know."

Kuhner said he was unable to identify the caller or the reason he was threatening him. All the caller would say, Kuhner said, was: "You know what you did to me at last Tuesday's meeting."

Board Chairman Russell Brechin said Kuhner was entitled to "pro

Report Later

Flanders, Morse and Fulbright were the principal attackers of McCarthy in the move to have the Senate censure him. The Senate will reconvene later this year to receive a report from the Watkins committee, which was set up to study the charges.

Originally, the hearings had been scheduled to begin Monday, but Watkins said the committee will hold a closed session that day to work out "formal details" and thus delay the public meeting until Tuesday. It will be open to spectators and newsmen, but barred to radio, television or newsreel coverage.

Murray Is New Altitude King

Hits New Record In Bell X1A

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Air Force hasn't permission to say so, but it is no longer much of a secret that the new altitude king of powered flight is 30-year-old Maj. Arthur Murray.

Murray is one of more than 30 test pilots attached to Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Well-founded reports are that he flew the Bell X1A rocket plane to a new altitude record earlier this month—possibly a mile or two higher than the 83,235 feet reached by Marine Lt. Col. Marion E. Carl in the Douglas Skyrocket D558-2 Aug. 31, 1953.

Harrisburg, Pa., Native

Murray, a native of Harrisburg, Pa., has the Air Medal and eight Oak Leaf Clusters, the last for flying high-altitude test missions at the flight research center at Edwards. He has test flown the F80, F84 and F86 and jet fighters in addition to several Bell experimental aircraft.

Air Force Secretary Talbott announced, at an Air Force Assn. dinner Saturday, that an Air Force test plane had "broken the world's altitude record—and it will go higher."

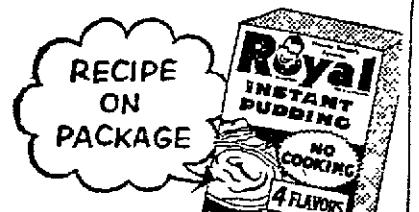

But identity of the plane, pilot and record was withheld for security reasons.

The department said 263 births were recorded for Lincoln, of which 25 were non-residents of the county. The other 19 births were recorded as county residents.

Of the 112 deaths, 58 were males and 54 females, the department noted. Twenty-four were non-residents of the county.

Earlham College President To Lead Workshop At NWU

Resource leader for the Nebraska Wesleyan University faculty workshop Tuesday, Aug. 31, and Wednesday, Sept. 1, will be one of American education's most colorful personalities, according to the university.

Thomas E. Jones, president of Earlham College in Richmond, Ind., is renowned for his enthusiasm for the destiny of the liberal arts college.

Born Elsa Mazentine Jones, one of eight farm children, he worked on a farm, taught school and served as a street car conductor in order to obtain funds to attend classes at Earlham.

Assigned To Girls Dorm

Dr. Jones quickly changed his name to Thomas Elsa shortly after arriving at Earlham where he found he had been assigned to the girls dormitory.

Strangely enough, the original middle name of Mazentine was that of a Mexican bullfighter—hardly fitting for the enthusiastic Hoosier whose fighting has always been in the interest of world peace.

As active as a student then as he is today, Dr. Jones became a Quaker "great" as a center on the football team, displayed an interest in all sports, and was a specialist in oratorical contests.

He will make three speaking appearances on the Wesleyan cam-

Rev. Z. S. Rydz To Teach Music

The Rev. Zygmund S. Rydz has been assigned to teach church music in the Lincoln Catholic parochial schools. He will also serve as consultant for choir directors and organists in the Lincoln diocese.

Father Rydz, who was ordained in 1948, recently was granted a diploma by the Plus X School of Liturgical Music in New York. He served as assistant pastor in Beatrice, Sacred Heart at Lawrence, and St. Teresa's in Lincoln before entering the school in 1952.
